

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A method for constructing an illuminating and reflecting apparatus is provided. The method comprises the steps of providing a layered metal substrate with an aluminum layer between a first and a second layer of copper and removing a defined area of one of the layers of copper to form a reflective portion. A localized light source is positioned to allow light to reflect off of the reflective portion.